

06. RESULTS

The periodic real time survey data of the current investigation at Doyang reservoir, Nagaland with respect to the different physic-chemical parameters of water, abundance and diversity of fish resources during February, 2015 to January, 2018 are presented in this section. The study was performed at regular mode of interval with the support of scientific expertise and local fisherman. All the output (data) result is validated in standard international protocols. All analysis was performed in two respective time segment on monthly basis; 1st phase (February, 2015 to May, 2016) and 2nd phase (June, 2016 to January, 2018). Accordingly several statistical analyses which may establish a comprehensive relationship between fish diversity to the given physic-chemicals parameters at the respective study sites also figure out.

Recorded fish species from the study area

From the study area, total 64 numbers of fish species were physically documented during the whole research period at Doyang reservoir, Nagaland. All recorded finfishes are formulated by local name, IUCN status and their population trends in present scenario (Table 3). It has been found from the collected data that, there are total 16 families under 6 orders among which Cyprinidae family shares the highest number (39) and common to the rest followed by Siluridae, Sisoridae, Mastacembelidae, Heteropneustidae, Channidae, Belonidae, Nemacheilidae etc. (Figure 18). Among the 6 orders Cypriniformes showed the highest number of species (45) followed by Perciformes, Siluriformes, Synbranchiformes, Beloniformes, Anguilliformes etc. (Table 4, Figure 19). Subsequently, present investigation also support that, most of the available fish species belongs from Least Concern (LC) whereas 08 numbers of fish species under NT (Near Threatened), 05 are under VU (Vulnerable), 01 is under EN (Endangered), 02 species are NE (Not Evaluated) and 03 species belongs to DD (Data Deficient) categories as directed by IUCN Red list (Ver. 2019-1) (Table 5, Figure 20). Documented fishes are indigenous, some numbers are endemic and few shows heterogeneous distribution, variations also depend on season-wise rainfall and temperature fluctuations. Based on the research output, 27 fish species was found to be of Ornamental value, while 24 numbers of fish species seems to be of commercial value and the remaining 21 species are showing minor commercial value.
